Fund Manager Comment

The Fixed Income market was volatile during May, with an average return impacted by sticky inflation, low growth expectations, and impending fiscal issues. During the mid-month, there was a duration sell-off, especially with the rating downgrade of the U.S. Treasury securities. However, the lost ground was clawed back towards the end of the month, but uncertainties over the tariff-related impact on the overall economy remain significant.

Within the month, the US 10-year rate moved from 4.16% to 4.40%, with a mid-month high of nearly 4.60%. During the month, bets on a Fed rate cut for 2025 decreased from 4 cuts to 2 cuts, with hard data, especially regarding unemployment, holding up well despite a consensus of an overall slowdown amid the tariff scenario. This, together with the downgrade of US credit, led to the elevation of the treasury curve within the month.

During the month, Brent ended marginally higher at c. USD 63.90 from c. USD 62.12 is in line with the expected low growth, coupled with a probable increase in Supply. The regional IG and HY space remains favorable to its international counterparts and will continue to attract flows from yield-seeking investors.

QNB MENA Debt Fund, after being launched in 2017, has paid 16 coupons. We remain focused on taking advantage of the opportunistic trades apparent in the market. The fund manager has gradually increased the fund's duration to position the fund to an eventual steeper yield curve. Assets of the Fund are satisfactorily deployed as per the investment guidelines and also in line with the selected benchmark, which the fund intends to outperform in the longer run
